NORTH CAROLINA.

After each party has had a jubilee over the result in North Carolina, and the public have settled down to the conviction that the Republicans elected their candidate for Covernor by about 2,000 majority, we have at last received the official returns, showing 98,594 votes for Caldwell and 96,679 for Merriman; a Republican majority of 1,945. The strength of parties in North Carolina is shown by the following table, beginning with 1866:

Dom	Trem		Gain.
1866 Governor 34,345		Gain.	Canter.
1863—Governor7J,594		20 240	et 400
1868—President 54,090
1870-Attorney Gen'1, 77,645
1872-Governor 96,679		9.031	15,107

Republican loss, 12,799.

In 1860 the total vote for President was 96,230; in 1866, for Governor, 45,-054-not half the vote of 1860; in 1868, 165,833 for Governor and 180,376 for President; in 1870, for Attorney General, 171,075; in 1872, for Governor, 195,273. We give the Democracy the benefit of the statement that while they gained 10,496 from the August to the November election in 1868, the Republicans gained only 3,987, and that similar gains by each party from August to November this year would give the State to Greeley by a handsome majority.

PRESIDENTIAL TICKETS. - The first ticket put into the field this year was that of the Labor Reformers--Judge Davis for President and Governor Parker for Vice, but both having withdrawn, are now out of the fight. The Pree Trade party put up a ticket, but it is not now heard of. The tickets still in EASTERN. GREELEY'S SPEECH AT CINCINNATI.

Cincinnati, Sept. 20 .- Horace Greeley arrived here at 3:30 p. m. in charge of the Reception Committee. The entire Common Council, with the Mayor at their head, met him at the depot and escorted him to the Burnett House, through an immense throng of people The reception was enthusiastic but did not assume a political character. After resting a few minutes at the hotel Greeley was taken to the Exposition Hall, where President Satheron and Mayor Davis made brief speeches of welcome, to which Greeley responded in a short address, devoted to a review of the progress of the west in arts and industries. After the conclusion of his address he passed through the Exposition Hall and was subsequently escorted to the hotel. Having consented to make a political speech this evening a large crowd gathered in front of the Burnett House, and Greeley appearing on the balcony commenced his speech by saving that he was there as a guest of the city and it was his wish to abstain while he remained from remarks which might seem to savor of partizan purpose. He had however been attacked since his arrival for remarks made in a speech at Pittsburgh last night, which he considered had been unfairly interpreted and misrepreseuted, and would trust to the hospitality and generosity of his entertainers to permarks reaction of the said in explicit he was as to what he he was discreumstances under which the impelled in the Winter of '60-61' to offer in good faith to submit the whole question of Union or dis-Union to a fair unrestrained vote of the people of the Southern States. He believed then as now that if such vote could have been had the Bouthern people would have voted against dis-Union, and this was what he stated at Pittsburgh. The remark had been perverted into an expression of his present belief and present conviction that any State has the right to dissolve this Union at its own good pleasure, he utterly repudiated and condemned that sentiment. He did not believe that any State or that ten States, or even a majority of the States, had the right to dissolve the Union. That Union was founded on a constitution. It was a charted government, not a mere league. It did not constitute a confederacy merely but a nation; not a government of limited and defined powers but of unlimited duration. He believed the Union was not only destined but was intended to be perpetuated, and that the great war, if there ever was any reasonable doubt as to the nature of that union, had settled the doubt forever. He then spoke of the Cincinnati Convention, praising the platform adopted and declairing that he felt it an honor to assist in any capacity in forwarding the principles there laid down. Governor Randolph, ot New Jersey, made a brief speech and the crowd dispersed. Greeley goes to Louisville to-morrow where he remains over Sunday and goes to Indianapolis on Monday. MISCELLANEOUS.

MORE ABOUT SMITH'S AFFIDAVIT. The Mormone dare not Face Philip K.

Ргосив, Sept. 20, 1872. EDITOR RECORD: I was present at the time when Philip Klingen Smith made his affidavit concerning the massacre at the Mountain Meadows. That affidavit is sealed with the seal of our District Court. Smith's statements were straightforward, and from his manner it was evident that he intended them to be the truth, and nothing but the truth. The affidavit, though in narrative form, was mainly taken by question and answer. The Salt Lake Herald, in a late issue, in evident alarm, calls for the arrest and punishment of Smith. That call is not sincere. They dare not face Philip K. Smith in Court. He is ready to go at any time that he is wanted. From that affidavit we learn, among other things, that Brigham Young was Governo Utah and Superintendent of Indian Affairs at the tipe and a long time after the passere, and that John D. Lee was as Indian Agent for Southern Unh; that the force sent against the emigrants was a regular military expedition-a part of a regiment of the militia of Utah Territory, regularly called out, and armed and equipped, officered by the proper regimental officers, and marching with regimental baggage wagons and a regular military outfit, except artillery; that it was understood by the rank and file that the expedition had been ordered by Gov. Young; that Major John D. Lee, who was in immediate command, had invited the Indians within his superintendency to join the expedition, which they did; and finally, that Gov. Young never courtmartialed Major Lee for his action in that bloody affair, nor called him to account as Indian Agent, nor as a tellow member of the Mormon church. These, Mr. Editor, are some of the ngly facts contained in that affidavit; and neither the Salt Lake Herald folks nor Brigham Young dure face them and l'hilip Klingan Smith in open court.

[The writer of the foregoing is a pioneer of Lincoln county. He knows of what he writes, and the public may rely upon the correctness of his judgment as well as the reliability of his statements. -ED. RECORD.]

ACQUITTED!

After a part of to-day's edition had been worked of, we were informed that the jury in the case of The State vs. Morgan Courtney lad agreed upon a verdict. We stopped the press and repaired to the Court House. Necessarily there was some delay, as Court had adjourned for the day, and the Judge, the Sheriff, the Clerk, the District Attorney and counsel for the detendant had to be called from their respective lodgings. At 1:35 a. m. Judge Fuller took his seat upon the bench, the jury was called, the verdict recorded. It was then read, after which Courtney was discharged. Before he could leave the Court room. he was arrested by Sheriff Kane on warrant from Storey county, and immediately locked up in his cell.
